Policy on Non-Healthcare Professionals Attending an Accredited Continuing Education Live Activity

Per all regulatory requirements, when an accredited continuing education activity is supported by grant funding from an ineligible company, the terms of the grant do not allow for in-person participation by non-health care providers and/or guests at a live event. The educational grant can be used for health care professionals only.

The following statement must appear on all handout materials for live, in-person activities:

This activity is free of charge to participants. Additionally, per regulatory guidelines, the educational grant used to support this activity may only be used for health care professionals attending the presentation. Our grant funding does not allow for participation by non-health care professionals and/or guests.

Policy on Non-Healthcare Professionals Attending an Accredited Continuing Education Enduring Activity

There are no restrictions on non-health care professionals attending internet enduring activities, however, these individuals should not be targeted to participate unless they are part of the activity's target audience.
